The WHO World report on ageing and health is not for the book shelf it is a living breathing testament to all older people who have fought for their voice to be heard at all levels of government across disciplines and sectors. - Mr Bjarne Hastrup President International Federation on Ageing and CEO DaneAge This report outlines a framework for action to foster Healthy Ageing built around the new concept of functional ability. This will require a transformation of health systems away from disease based curative models and towards the provision of older-person-centred and integrated care. It will require the development sometimes from nothing of comprehensive systems of long term care. It will require a coordinated response from many other sectors and multiple levels of government. And it will need to draw on better ways of measuring and monitoring the health and functioning of older populations. These actions are likely to be a sound investment in society's future. A future that gives older people the freedom to live lives that previous generations might never have imagined. The World report on ageing and health responds to these challenges by recommending equally profound changes in the way health policies for ageing populations are formulated and services are provided. As the foundation for its recommendations the report looks at what the latest evidence has to say about the ageing process noting that many common perceptions and assumptions about older people are based on outdated stereotypes. The report's recommendations are anchored in the evidence comprehensive and forward-looking yet eminently practical. Throughout examples of experiences from different countries are used to illustrate how specific problems can be addressed through innovation solutions. Topics explored range from strategies to deliver comprehensive and person-centred services to older populations to policies that enable older people to live in comfort and safety to ways to correct the problems and injustices inherent in current systems for long-term care.

Van Rensselaer Potter created and defined the term "bioethics" in 1970, to describe a new philosophy that sought to integrate biology, ecology, medicine, and human values. Bioethics is often linked to environmental ethics and stands in sharp contrast to biomedical ethics. Because of this confusion (and appropriation of the term in medicine), Potter chose to use the term "Global Bioethics" in 1988. Potter's definition of bioethics from Global Bioethics is, "Biology combined with diverse humanistic knowledge forging a science that sets a system of medical and environmental priorities for acceptable survival."

Improving public services, using State resources efficiently, and managing State agencies effectively have been ongoing concerns of Latin American and Caribbean (LAC) governments since the beginning of this century. Government officials are now paying closer attention to the results obtained by their administrations. Citizens are now demanding not only universality but also quality in the services that the State provides (e.g., education, healthcare, and legal services). To meet this growing demand for public sector effectiveness, governments have formulated new laws, created or modified institutions, and implemented innovative management methodologies and instruments. Based on data gathered in 24 countries, this book analyzes the current situation, the progress made, and the challenges still facing the governments of the region in their efforts to achieve more effective public administrations.

Pronto hará veinte años desde que se definió, de forma oficial, el concepto de desarrollo sostenible. En este intervalo de tiempo que ha transcurrido desde el Informe Brundtland hay quién ha contabilizado más de doscientas interpretaciones distintas del término; para unos se trata de una perogrullada, un cliché, una frase hecha y hasta un engaño. Para otros, es útil porque define una filosofía y se ha conseguido que el desarrollo sostenible se convierta en un objetivo planetario al que, en la actualidad, se han adherido prácticamente todos los países porque, es bien cierto, nadie puede estar en contra de una idea de naturaleza intrínseca tan positivista: el desarrollo sin degradación. El problema de fondo radica en si, en general, los gobiernos de todo el mundo, incluyendo autoridades regionales y locales, son conscientes de a qué se han comprometido y a que se comprometen. Porque el desarrollo sostenible, además de partir de valores y prioridades distintas a la planificación económica tradicional, se mueve en horizontes temporales y espaciales muy diferentes. Esta publicación tiene por finalidad profundizar en estas cuestiones. En primer lugar, trata de aclarar el concepto, su evolución y los sistemas de medición alternativos y propios del desarrollo sostenible, centrándose en la huella ecológica como indicador sintético de sostenibilidad fuerte para, a continuación, proceder a su cálculo y aplicación, por vez primera, a la comunidad gallega. La segunda parte ofrece explicaciones alternativas a los resultados, tanto desde un punto de vista estructural como de gestión energética, culminando con un análisis de las políticas económicas medioambientales actuales y las perspectivas de futuro ante la inminente aplicación del Protocolo de Kioto.

La producción intelectual de la CEPAL en sus 70 años de existencia ha sido vasta en distintos ámbitos del desarrollo. En este libro se analizan y contextualizan los principales hitos e ideas del pensamiento económico de la CEPAL sobre recursos naturales, medio ambiente y sostenibilidad, organizados en las dos grandes etapas que han caracterizado la vida institucional: la estructuralista (1948-1990) y la neoestructuralista (de 1990 en adelante). A partir de una revisión sistemática de la literatura, se destacan ideas como el vínculo entre la especialización productiva en recursos naturales y los términos de intercambio desfavorables, formulada en los años cincuenta; la soberanía sobre los recursos naturales, en los sesenta; la enunciación temprana del principio de responsabilidades comunes pero diferenciadas, en los setenta; los estilos de desarrollo y medio ambiente, en los ochenta; la competitividad espuria, en los noventa, y la gobernanza de los recursos naturales, el estilo de desarrollo sostenible
